Subject: Timing of an Effective warning/forecast

That's the Greek stock market .

My warning and Forbes article to exit were issued early 2008 !

That what I meant during our frequent discussions that what really matters is that when you see clear change in fundamentals , while almost all others are on the opposite side.

When the event starts to be perceived as probable by the markets , it is too late.

A good example is your description regarding the peace process of the truck driving at 200 kmh when you know that there is a major road block few hundred kms away , though you can never be sure how far it is !!!
